

Licence:

The software product can be used free of charge under these licensing terms.

Anyone who uses this software product agrees to comply fully with these license terms.

It is prohibited to sell or lease obtained permission to use this software product. It is prohibited to access the functions of the program in any other way than using Microsoft Excel. Access to the program code is password protected and it is forbidden to display the code or modify it. It is prohibited to alter the information related to the author or license terms. The software must not be included or distributed in another software package.

The software product is provided without warranty of any kind. The author is not liable for any damage or loss caused by using this software product.

These license terms are binding and must be observed. Any action by the user, which would be in conflict with these license terms, leads to the termination of this license agreement, and the user is required to discontinue the use of this software product without any exceptions.